Message from President of SSFF & ASIA Tetsuya Bessho

One year has passed since the global pandemic began. Even with the rapid changes in our society, daily life, and values, we received about the same number of submissions as we have in recent years. The filmmakers were continuing to make short films despite the hardships & difficulties. Cities under lockdown, dramas filmed in one room, editing a film with footage from remote shootings, and the sense of isolation & solitude. As we looked at the work, we could see the "CINEMA" created during the pandemic as only short films can and we received the heartfelt messages of the filmmakers loud & clear. I would like the film festival to be a place of "ADVENTURE" where we can experience and share together the world as it is NOW as a the place that shows the possibilities of new images with online and virtual venues, shooting and editing with smartphones, and vertical images as "VENTURE = new challenges," as well as opportunities for art and culture to play an active role in society by creating new communication methods as "AD = advertisements" through short films that have drawn the attention of companies and organizations. We are excited to bring to you our "CINEMADventure" film festival.

Message from Ambassador of SSFF & ASIA LiLiCo

I hope that new creators and lovers of feature-length films will once again dive into the world of short films this year. In these trying times, more people are making films & visual content. I look forward to being dazzled again by innovative ideas and the appeal of short films where you can experience the culture and aromas of various countries and regions. No limits or rules except for the running time! Expand your senses stimulate your mind through short films. I'm very excited again this year♡ & jewelry.

Tokyo × Short Shorts PROJECT

In 2016, the Tokyo Metropolitan Government launched a project in collaboration with SSFF & ASIA as a project to show the allure of Tokyo to attract people from Japan and overseas to visit Tokyo. We established the "Cinematic Tokyo Competition," calling for short films with Tokyo as the central theme from all over the world. At the 2021 Film Festival, we will continue to screen and select the Best Short Award (Governor's Award) from the Cinematic Tokyo Competition and will hold seminars to support Japanese creators. This year, we welcome Yoshitaka Mori, the film director of "Space Brothers," as guest and will hold an online seminar with the theme "The World of Cinema & Movie Music - the Key to Filmmaking."

SDGs:

SSFF & ASIA has always searched for films that connect with SDGs through programs like "Save the Planet!" (Minister of the Environment Award), the J-WAVE Award, "War and the Power to Live", "Shibuya Diversity" and the "Ladies for Cinema Project," that features short films by creators from around the world. We've prepared these programs again this year with the hope that through watching these films & the messages within in the stories will be one way that leads to being a part of the SDG movement.
